to call attention to the fact that any of the presidential candidates is of the Catholic faith? The Oregon Senator asked.

Reading from a newspaper story that Frank J. Hale of New York, was losing $500 a week running the magazine "Politics" here of opposing Herbert Hoover and supporting Gov. Smith, Hefflin said, "there is food for thought."

Hefflin said both the Smith and Hoover campaigns were so conducted as to lead him to believe that funds were "being covered up."

Adverting to the reports of the Hoover managers that only $112,745 had been spent on behalf of Hoover, Hefflin said that it was much more than that. "Probably it was between three or four millions," he said.

Dale Objects to Comments. As Hefflin continued his general statement Senator Dale (Rep., Vermont, interrupted. "I don't like the way this is going," he said. "It is merely setting down comments of the witnesses."

"That's true," said Chairman Steiwer. "The Senator from Vermont knows I did not have to come here," Hefflin said, "but I was glad to do so and I have a right to make my statement. I have a lot of them to make and am going to make them."

"If you have any names to give us we will be glad to have them," Steiwer said. Hefflin then suggested that on its return trip to New York the committee recall William F. Kenny, who gave $70,000 to the Smith campaign fund.

"I doubt that this committee has any right to go into the motives of the House of Representatives," Snell told Senator Barkley (Dem.) of Kentucky in reply to a question as to whether James E. Watson of New York had given him any information on which the House resolution was based.

By the Associated Press. LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 31.—Mrs. E. She said Booth sent her money and supplied her with funds to hire detectives and financed her trip to Reno, Nev., where she obtained a divorce. The validity of the Reno divorce is involved in the present suit. Warren charges desertion.

The public has been excluded from the hearing because of the nature of the testimony. Warren alleged his wife never established a legal residence in Reno and for that reason the divorce granted there was invalid.

STUART SUTHERLAND KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

He Was on Way From Kansas City to Visit Relatives in St. Louis.

Stuart Sutherland, former St. Louisan, living in Kansas City for the last two years, was killed yesterday in an automobile accident while driving to St. Louis to spend the holiday with relatives.

Sutherland, contract manager at Kansas City for the accounting firm of Ernst & Ernst, was found at 8 a. m. under his overturned automobile beside the Kansas City-St. Louis highway, 10 miles out from Kansas City. His car, after leaving the pavement, had crashed through a fence and overturned. He was alone. Taken to a Kansas City hospital, by passing motorists who found him, he died within two hours. He was 29 years old.

Funeral arrangements were delayed pending the arrival of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel G. Sutherland, 6811 Pershing avenue, from their summer home at Amherst Island, Ont., where they were when notified of the death. They are expected here tomorrow. Sutherland attended Washington University until the spring of 1917, when he went to France to drive an ambulance in the Norton-Harjes service, attached to the French army. Later he returned to the United States and joined the air service, receiving a lieutenant's commission at Harvard Training School. He was engaged in accounting work in St. Louis until sent to Kansas City.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Gordon and Norman Sutherland, and two sisters, Mrs. Rita Sherry and Mrs. Ann Kissack.

Five Hurt in Crashes With Stolen Auto.
A stolen sedan in which two men were speeding through Westport last midnight, struck three other machines in a series of collisions and injured four men and a woman. One of the men, who was arrested, said he had been invited to go riding by the driver of the stolen machine, who escaped.

The sedan first hit the machine of Gordon Miller, 6761 Easton avenue, turning Miller's machine over at Hodiament and Easton avenues. The sedan then ran south into Hodiament avenue, crashing head-on into an automobile in which Mr. and Mrs. Ray Croning of Pine Lawn were riding. The stolen car then careened into a parked machine belonging to Joseph W. Melton, 710 Limit avenue.

In the Miller machine were Joseph E. Still, 3130 Albin avenue, and Francis Smith, 6761 Easton. They and Miller suffered scalp lacerations and body bruises. Mrs. Croning was internally injured and her husband was severely bruised. The machine had been stolen from the garage of Joseph Wisniewski, to the rear of 1546 North Fifteenth street. The man riding in the car, who is held as a witness, said he is Lloyd De Lisle and gave an address on North Fifteenth street.

Murill Williams, 12 years old, suffered a broken spine yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at Grand boulevard and Market street. The boy had left a southbound Grand car and had walked from in front of the car toward the east curb when the machine, passing to the left of the street car, as is necessary at that point, hit him. The boy's shoulder also was fractured. The driver was arrested. The boy is the son of William Williams, 4331 Washington boulevard.

Louie Worley, 17, 4312 Hunt avenue, was arrested last night after an automobile he drove struck and seriously injured Emmett Thomas, 56, 4301A Manchester avenue at Newstead and Manchester. After striking Thomas, Worley's machine crashed into a parked automobile.

Mrs. Elmer Shepard, 1167 Hamilton avenue and Gerald Benham of the Downtown Y. M. C. A., each lost several teeth and were bruised when automobiles driven by Mrs. Shepard's husband and Ted Horman, 3444 Halliday avenue, collided yesterday in the 5700 block of DeGiverville avenue.

When he fell his head struck a rail of the street car track. The driver of the automobile did not stop, but when arrested later, said he did not know he had hit anyone.

Staeten was a veteran of the Collinsville Police Department, and at one time was Chief.

HAMMONTON, N. J., May 31.—Twenty-eight persons were injured last night when a bus in which they were returning to Philadelphia (from Atlantic City), collided with another, crashed through the guard rail on White Horse Pike at Lake Hammonton and landed on its side in four feet of water, 10 feet below the road.

The bus, filled with a holiday crowd, was being steered through fog by Leroy Souder, 19 years old, of Clementon, N. J., when the glare of the headlights of another bus blinded the driver.

MAN KILLS SELF WITH GAS

Roy Peters, 55, Unable to Find Work Became Despondent.

John A. Peters, 53 years old, ended his life by inhaling gas at his home, 2411 South Ninth street yesterday. Roy Peters, a son, said his father, a brewmaster, had been despondent over inability to obtain employment.

"Give my body to St. Louis University," Peters wrote in one note, presumably referring to the medical school of the university. "I have no bank account and no insurance—I am a poor man," he added.

Blindfolded... in scientific test of leading Cigarettes, Miss Hope Livermore selects OLD GOLD

"I really did not think there was very much difference among the milder brands of cigarettes and I do like a mild smoke... The blindfold test proved to me that there was one that was noticeably smoother and more pleasant than the rest... I found after the test was over that this was an OLD GOLD."

Why You Can Pick Them, Even In the Dark!

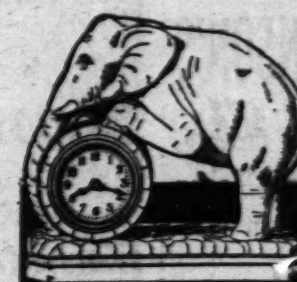

Three types of leaves grow on the tobacco plant. The heavy, coarse top leaves, irritating to the throat. The withered ground leaves, without taste or aroma. And the heart-leaves, rich in cool and delightful smoking qualities. These golden ripe heart-leaves give to OLD GOLD their honey-like smoothness, mellow fragrance and aroma. That is why you can tell the difference... even in the dark!

Champions— Again Victors At Indianapolis

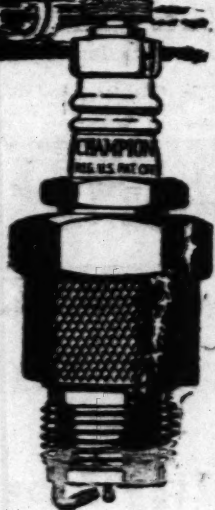

Louis Meyer, driving a rear-drive Miller, won with Champions at 99.48 miles per hour, Louis Schneider finishing second and George Souders third in Champion-equipped Millers. Champion Spark Plug, as usual, performed perfectly throughout this gruelling test.

Again, Champions are equipment on the winning cars—as they have been in practically every major racing event, both here and abroad, for over five years.

But Champion's victory is wider than that. More important is the fact that two out of every three car owners, the world over, rely on dependable Champions. A complete set of Champions in your car will restore power and speed and quickly save their cost in less gas and oil used.

SCHNEIDER RESUMES HIS ATTACK ON KOELN

Asks Why City Collector Has Not Filled Quarterly Payroll Reports.

William R. Schneider, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, resumed today his attack on City Collector Koeln, who is backing Henry S. Caulfield for the governorship. Schneider asked Koeln why he has not been filing quarterly reports on his office payroll, as required by the Constitution of Missouri.

The Constitution (Art. IX, Sec. 13) says that every county and municipal officer shall file a quarterly report with the County Court "of the salaries by him actually paid to his deputies or assistants, stating the same in detail, and verifying the same by his affidavit; and for any statement or omission in such return, contrary to truth, he shall be liable to the penalties of wilful and corrupt perjury."

In St. Louis, the Comptroller is held to take the place of the County Court, in receiving the fiscal reports of officials.

Sends Open Letter to Koeln. Schneider says, in an open letter sent to Koeln today, that he has inquired at the Comptroller's office as to whether Koeln has been making such reports. In reply, he says, Deputy Comptroller Gunn told him the reports were not made, but that he, Gunn, regularly goes to the Collector's office and approves his payroll.

"The records," Schneider wrote, "show that the commissions on property taxes grow larger year by year but you have for the last four or five years been turning in between $20,000 and $40,000 less annually in excess commissions than you turned in eight or nine years ago though the ordinance as to the number and pay of your deputies has remained the same."

"Will you comply with the above mentioned provisions of the Constitution, or will you permit me, in the presence of representatives of the press and yourself or your deputies, to check your office payroll and this additional discrepancy not heretofore mentioned? Remember you are a public servant and your official records are supposed to be open to the public. Since you are trying to inject your official system into our state government by assuming to dictate who shall be the next Governor, the people have a right to know your system and see the public records in your custody."

Refers to Tax Collections Fees. Schneider, in his letter, refers to his former showing that Koeln receives about $12,000 annually in fees for collecting the State income tax, in addition to his official salary of $10,000. He alludes also to his charge that Koeln is improperly placing on the city and school funds the cost of collecting the State income tax. Schneider charged Gunn with improperly approving the latter arrangement. Gunn today said Schneider was misrepresenting his position.

Gunn said that he checked Koeln's payroll annually, and he said that the Collector does not expend for salaries of deputies and assistants so much as the State law permits him to expend. He said he had told the Collector that he did not think $150,000 a year an excessive cost for collecting $40,000,000 revenue. Gunn is made to appear, in Schneider's letter, as approving the expenditure of $150,000 to collect $20,000,000.

Collector Koeln, who then had not received Schneider's letter, was told by a Post-Dispatch reporter of its contents, and was asked whether he would permit such an examination as Schneider requested. Koeln said he would not show Schneider anything, and would not answer charges made by him.

STREET CARS REPLACED BY BUSSES IN KEOKUK, IA.

System There Was Established With Horse-Drawn Vehicles

In 1879, KEOKUK, Ia.—Keokuk's street cars have made their final runs. After nearly half a century's service, they have given way to motor busses.

This was one of the first cities in this section to have car service. Horse cars came in 1879. In 1896, electric ones made their appearance. But now even these have gone.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY TO COVER BOMBINGS

County Body, Called to Look Into Wilmas' Secret Income, to Extend Investigation.

The special St. Louis County grand jury called for next week will be instructed to investigate among other matters, the recent series of bombings of homes and business establishments. Many of these bombings have been attributed to labor troubles.

The special jury was called by Circuit Judge Mulloy Monday, following the disclosure by the Post-Dispatch that Sheriff Wilmas had secret sources of income. Judge Mulloy today said the scope of the jury's work would be widened to embrace bombing outrages.

The Citizens' Committee of St. Louis County, sponsored by the Manufacturers and Merchants' Association and various business and civic organizations, yesterday addressed letters to Judge Mulloy and to Circuit Judge Roskopf, in charge of the St. Louis grand jury, asking for grand jury investigations of bombings in both the city and county.

In addition to this letter, Judge Mulloy has received several letters from individuals and organizations asking for some action to check the bombings.

It is understood the Citizens' Committee has been conducting an investigation and will have evidence to present to the grand jury, in the hope of obtaining indictments against persons responsible for the destruction of property.

Judge Roskopf said he would give careful consideration to the request of the Citizens' Committee, but would make no decision until he learned what evidence was available.

Harry J. Hagen, business agent of the Lathers' Union, was arrested last year while preparing to dynamite a small Olive street hotel, but was released when the hotel owner refused to prosecute. Recently he has been arrested twice, and released on bond, after questioning concerning the bombing of a house and the burning of another.

INQUIRY INTO PRODUCTION

COST OF CORN IS ORDERED

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 31. — An investigation into relative production costs and other data concerning the corn industry in the United States and the countries in principal competition for the American market has been ordered for June 25 by the Tariff Commission.

A tentative survey of cost data and other factors entering into the world's corn crop has been prepared by the commission in response to the demands of farm organizations for protection against foreign growers, principally those of Argentina. The American farm groups seek an increase in the tariff rates from 15 to 22½ cents per bushel, which the President is asked to order under the flexible provisions of the tariff act.

The commission's investigators were unable to obtain data as to the cost of growing corn in Argentina because of objections from that Government, but in a study embracing eight of the principal states, placed the average domestic net cost at $4.676 for bushel, including delivery at the elevator, interest on land and other capital.

EDWIN I. NOXON, 63, DIES
AS RESULT OF BURN ON FOOT

The funeral of Edwin I. Noxon, who died yesterday, will take place from the Lafayette Park Methodist Church, Lafayette and Missouri avenues, Saturday at 2:30 p. m. Mr. Noxon, who was 63 years old, had failed to walk from an operation during which his left leg was amputated at Barnes Hospital. Blood poisoning, which developed from a burn on the foot, had settled in the leg.

For more than 25 years Mr. Noxon had been general superintendent of plants of the Ralston-Purina Co. A number of machines used in the plants had been invented by him. Surviving are his widow, three sons, Elmer W. Noxon of Battle Creek, Mich.; Eugene I. Noxon of New York and George A. Noxon of St. Louis, and two daughters, Mrs. C. P. Dyer and Mrs. Leslie Johnson of St. Louis.

The entire population was aroused to fight the flames, as well as fire departments from all nearby towns. Among buildings destroyed was that of the Bank of Meadville.

SAID a well known lady of ST. LOUIS the other day. "And, furthermore," continued the lady, "we found the big vacuum cleaner was really used only as a carpet sweeper. But the VAC-ALL is so handy—we use it NOT ONLY for our regular cleaning but also on odd jobs all over the house."

It's actually fun to use it on the overstuffed furniture, drapes, picture mouldings, and hard-to-get-at-places where we never thought of using our big vacuum cleaner. Why, my husband is like a boy with a new toy, and takes delight in keeping the inside of the car epic and span with the VAC-ALL. He says he does it in a jiffy."

And so the story of VAC-ALL usefulness spreads. Every home needs one—every woman wants one when she sees how it lightens household drudgery.

WASHINGTON AVENUE AT 4th

Business declined in May throughout the Eighth Federal Reserve District, the Federal Reserve Bank reports in its monthly statement today. Trade was less active than for two or three months previous, and, in most of the lines investigated, than for May of last year.

"This was true of both goods for ordinary consumption as well as commodities of the heavier and more permanent sort," the statement says. "A rather marked slump developed in bookings of new business in the iron and steel industry."

"In all sections there is a disposition to purchase with caution. Likewise, buying by ultimate consumers lack the spontaneity noted earlier in the year."

"As reflected by returns of department stores in leading cities of the district, retail business in April was below that of a year ago. Reports from smaller urban centers and the country also indicated a slowing down in retail activity. The chief reasons given for the decline under last year were the fact that Easter this year was earlier than in 1927 and the backward and cool spring which has seriously hampered the movement of seasonal merchandise."

"Failure of the winter wheat crop in this area also has adversely affected sentiment and actual buying of goods and in the rural communities there is a general disposition to wait more definite information relative to other crops before filling requirements for merchandise. Planting of spring crops has made excellent progress but temperatures have been too low for best results in the matter of growth and development."

"While the employment situation was in better balance than during the preceding 30 days, less than the usual seasonal improvement occurred. The absorption of workers in outdoor activities was partly offset by reduced activities at many industrial plants. Improvement was noted among workers in the building industry, but a surplus of both skilled and common labor still exists in this classification. Highway construction and river and municipal work has absorbed large numbers of idle common laborers."

"The conditions in the bituminous coal trade were dull and disappointing. The trend of prices was lower, particularly on prepared sizes and mine run. Railroad Traffic Declines."

"Traffic of railroads operating in the district continued the steady decline which have marked the preceding months this year. Losses extended through virtually all freight classifications. The St. Louis Terminal Railway Association, which handles the interchange of 25 connecting roads, interchanged 214,952 loads in April, against 245,780 loads in March and 189,951 loads in April, 1927. Passenger traffic of the reported roads decreased 10 per cent as contrasted with the same month in 1927."

"Commercial failures in the district were fewer than in the month previous and smaller than those of a year ago."

GRADUATION LUNCHEON
AT WASHINGTON U. HALL
Display of Faculty Members' Writings Opens for Commencement Week.

A display of the published writings of members of the faculty and an open air play in which 75 alumni will participate are two of the features of commencement week at Washington University, which began today with a luncheon given to the young women graduates by girls of the junior class at McMillan Hall.

This is the seventy-fifth anniversary of the granting of the university's charter by the State, and the sixty-seventh commencement. A homecoming of graduates of the past is arranged, as usual, in connection with the various events.

Commencement exercises will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the Field House. The commencement address will be made by the Rev. Christopher R. Ellet of Boston. Degrees will be conferred by Acting Chancellor Throop.

The display of faculty literature, in Ridgely Library, will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily until Tuesday evening. The buildings on the main campus and in the medical and dental school group will be open also until Monday. Contributing to the publication display are 145 of the teachers, who have on view 105 bound volumes and 1645 reprints and pamphlets.

12 Books by Prof. Usher. Included are 12 volumes by Prof. Roland G. Usher of the history department, together with numerous translations into foreign tongues, the whole being enough to fill a three-foot shelf; 16 smaller volumes by Prof. Otto Heller, dean of the graduate school, including translations and collections of other authors; three volumes on religious and kindred subjects by the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson, five historical works by Prof. Thomas M. Marshall, seven on government and public bodies by Prof. Isidor Loeb, dean of the school of business administration; two on American economics by Dr. Isaac Lippincott, three medical works on gynecology by Dr. H. E. Crossen and three books by Dr. Willard Bartlett, dean of the dental school.

Some rare editions and historic and literary manuscripts from the collection given the library by W. K. Bixby, vice president of the university corporation, also are on display. They include a deed in George Washington's handwriting, a law brief in Abraham Lincoln's handwriting, two letters of Andrew Jackson, a document by John Adams, a letter by Sir Isaac Newton and manuscripts of Eugene Field, Robert Burns and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Pageant to Open Tomorrow. The first performance by the alumni group of "Mavourneen," a historical pageant-play, will be open to the public at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on the main quadrangle of the campus. It will be repeated Saturday night for alumni, seniors and the faculty, with a reception and dance afterward. In case of inclement weather on either night, the performance will be postponed until Monday night.

There is a stage simulating a castle courtyard, at the time of the action is that of King Charles II of England. Seats for 12,000 are provided, also a loud-speaker system. The production is under auspices of the alumni association and union of the university, coached by Harry McClain, a professional, and sponsored by a large group of patrons. Students will serve as ushers and the university orchestra will play. Special invitations to attend have been sent to Gov. Baker and his staff, other State officials, Mayor Miller and other city officials, Board of Education members and officials, senior classes of all public, parochial and private high schools, and school teachers.

Pop Corn Doesn't Hurt His Stomach

Mr. J. W. Wilkinson had stomach trouble and went to a hospital. This did not help, and he tried Adlerika. Now he says he can again eat and enjoy pop-corn.

The simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, saline etc. (known as Adlerika), has a most surprising DOUBLE action. First, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that often poisons the system for months. Second, Adlerika clears all Gas and sourness from stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble. And, in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, writes: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and bacilli."

Dr. J. W. Weaver: "In my 60 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated. It will astonish you the great amounts of poisonous matter Adlerika brings out—matter you would never believe was in your system. In chronic constipation, gas bloating, sour stomach and sick headache, just ONE spoonful Adlerika brings wonderful relief. At leading druggists. Sold in St. Louis by Wolf-Willson Drug Stores and other druggists."

CALLES DISMISSES AID ON SMUGGLING CHARGE

Gen. Jose Alvarez, Chief of Staff, Accused of Bringing in Silks.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, May 31.—Gen. Jose Alvarez, chief of staff to President Calles, has been dismissed from that post on charges of having betrayed the President's confidence by smuggling large shipments of silks into Mexico under the protection of Calles' name. The announcement of the General's dismissal, which was made over the signature of the President, created a sensation.

Gen. Alvarez was arrested and lodged in a cell at Police Headquarters. The morning papers today decided to withhold news of the arrest, awaiting an official statement on it.

Calles' announcement said: "To my great surprise and undoubtedly to that of the country, one of the highest State officials and a prominent member of the Army, Gen. Jose Alvarez, Chief of my General Staff, who enjoyed my friendship and confidence, has betrayed the elementary principles of honor and morality not only by directing the introduction of a large shipment of contraband but also by using my name in telegraphic orders to protect the contraband and to insure himself immunity."

The President added that police investigation had revealed that the General was conniving with other persons, chiefly foreigners. He said he considered it "very distressing that in the high spheres of government such lamentable acts had been committed but that it would have been more lamentable and still more disconcerting to the country if such matters were unremedied and corresponding penalties not imposed."

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK,
May 31.—After a dripping, cloudy morning, the weather cleared up a bit in the afternoon but the sun was unable to crash the gate and the track was heavy from the intermittent rainfall of the past few nights. The attendance was about 2000.

Chief Sabatini, which has won twice at this meet but according to his play has not convinced the public that he is not a gnat, was put on the schooling list today for acting up at the post in the seventh race yesterday. You might think a nag that can pay off prices like the Rumanian National debt would be allowed to kick a few straw now and then, but the authorities here are slaves to the rules.

Others on the list to stay after school were General Ha'man, Little, Little, Little, Little,
Marabou, Louis Rubenstein, Ma-zetta, Isabella, Bodyguard and Master Sweep.

Jean Bond Wins First.
Jean Bond, finishing with a strong burst of speed in the last 150 yards, won the first race, at six furlongs. The race proved a disappointment to the backers of Mother of Pearl, which lead clear past the stretch turn by about five lengths and quit in the final jump to pull up third. Jean Bond had to battle with Cleo to win. Cleo finishing second.

The winner paid $13.42 to win.
The start of the race was delayed 15 minutes when Father broke out in a rush before entering the starting gate, tossed Bogdanowski and made a bee line for the feed box in the home stable. See Sag also bolted, but L. McClair kept his seat and brought him around the oval under restraint. Paton was disconnected from the nose bag by the steward and induced to return, but did not choose to run a great deal.
Cleon paid $22.88 to place and Pearl paid $11.44 to show.

A Good Show Price.
The Doctor, heavily played favorite, justified his backers by winning the second race, a maiden affair at five furlongs. McLague got away second, held The Doctor there until the final drive and won easily. Vanquish won second place and Uncle's Miss third, by outstripping a group of five others in the stretch.

The winner paid only $3.50 but Uncle's Miss refunded a show price of $14.60.

Short Prices in Third.
Targee caused plenty of grief in the third by finishing out of the money. He started off in good shape in the mile event but, making the last turn, was pinched off the rail position by Adele W., which staged a neck-and-neck battle with Pommel to win by a head. Hayes' Choice was third.

All the prices paid were short.
The winner bringing only $4.42 for a $2 ticket. Hayes' Choice closed on the board at 50 to 1, but paid only $4.50 to show, to the accompaniment of throaty sighs and dirty remarks, but everybody should know that the "final" odds are not really final.

Another favorite scored in the fourth, when Medley, piloted by E.
Shropshire, tearfully outstripped a good field of six mounts to win by three lengths. Medley paid a very short price, $2.62.

HENNESSEY AND TILDEN TO PLAY IN CUP SINGLES

CHICAGO, May 31.—Johnny Tennessy of Indianapolis may carry most of the burden of the 'United States' effort to win the American zone Davis Cup tennis finals against Japan on the Chicago town and tennis club courts this week-end.

"Big Bill" Tilden, captain of the 'United States' team, has selected Tennessy to play in the singles with him and has indicated he would pair him with George Lott

The winner of the finals this week-end will go to Europe early in June to meet the winner of the European zone for the right to challenge France for the Davis cup, which is symbolic of international supremacy in tennis. The matches will be played tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

Both teams are in Chicago and working hard. Despite easy victories over Mexico and China, the U.S. team is focused on the opponent on the impending matches with the Japanese team, which won over Canada last week.

"I believe we are going to win," U.S. captain, "but it is going to be hard-fought. We

NINE STARTERS EXPECTED FOR $25,000 FAIRMOUNT DERBY, SATURDAY

MISSTEP, 2D TO REIGH COUNT AT LOUISVILLE, IS LIKELY FAVORITE

An evenly balanced field in which there appears to be plenty of competition for the favorites is assured for the Fairmount Derby of $25,000 added Saturday.

Missstep, the Lexington Stock Farm, is the probable favorite, largely because of his performance in the Kentucky Derby when he beat everything except the winner, Reigh Count. Bobasheba and Toro will rank next in the public esteem, probably, and then Jack Higgins, Galahad, Solace, which ran third to Victor in the Preakness.

WAGNER ELECTRIC PLAYING OF BEAR CONTINGENT

Selling Brings Further Liquidation—Stock Declines to 72, Rebounds to 78 3/4 Reacts to 75, Closing at 76.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, May 31.—Wagner Electric was the playing of a bear contingent on the local market today and when the gong sounded the end of the "play." Wagner was minus some six good points that it possessed at the outset, having recovered 4 of a total of 10 which it dropped at one period. Sales aggregated 225 shares.

Opening at $2 for loss of small fraction the bear contingent soon started offering the stock. It eventually slipped down to 72. Covering to profit by sales resulted in bidding up. On rebound, probably aided by new buying, the price reached 78 3/4. Again there was selling and reaction to 75. A point recovery followed before the close.

At the top point today, the stock had gone back 48 points from the high reached in the boom several weeks ago. It still is about double the price prevailing at start of year.

The decline probably brought in further liquidation, some of it possibly of "sell at market" character which naturally aided the downward movement.

The other feature of day was St. Louis car, which sold at 21 1/2 and 24, latter price a loss of 6 1/2 points from last previous sale two weeks ago. Sales were 150 shares.

Fractional net declines were shown by several issues, some others unchanged to higher.

Total sales amounted to 3439 shares, compared with 4036 shares Tuesday. Bond sales were $55,000, against $13,600 Tuesday.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in the market, high, low, close and net changes being given:

One Tobacco Satisfies Man With 45 Pipes

Larus & Bro. Co.,
Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:

When a man has 45 pipes he certainly is up against it for an all-round tobacco. But first, about my pipes. Some were sweet from the start, others remained obdurate and bitter despite the fact that I used every American brand and every English brand I could get or my tobaccoist could mention. Fancy prices! Hang the price—I wanted pipe satisfaction. The brands I tried failed; the mixtures made failed because the tobacco varied.

I saw the ads written by Edgeworth smokers, but they sounded too good to be true. I didn't try Edgeworth in despair, but just to see how low bad it might be. Well, it is praise enough when you know that my office humidor has been Edgeworthized. Now my good pipe tastes better and my bad pipe tastes good.

Respectfully yours,
J. J. Sonnenblick

OSAGE DICTIONARY NEARS COMPLETION

Compiler Recovers From Stroke and Continues Work in Research.

A 20,000-word dictionary of the Osage Indian language, delayed when Francis La Flesche of the Smithsonian Institution's Bureau of American Ethnology suffered a paralytic stroke, with his recovery again is on the way to completion under the auspices of the Institution and Missouri Historical Society.

This rapidly diminishing tribe was the "Missouri" of this section, for whom the river and the State were named. Their Indian name, Missouri, has been defined as "wooden canoe," with the explanation that Northern Indians, who used birch bark canoes, applied it to this tribe, who had to use the less graceful but sturdier dugout canoe on the swirling and snaky Missouri.

With the dictionary is to be included an encyclopedia of the customs, culture and rites of the tribe. It is said that unless the work can be finished with the present generation to assist, much valuable lore will be lost to history.

A $2000 fund for the work was given in 1926 by E. W. Marland of the Marland Oil Co., which had leases in the Osage district in Oklahoma. A considerable period was spent in finding a man adequate to the task, but eventually La Flesche was selected. He has Osage blood, and had written a 600-page volume on Osage laws, rites and religion.

La Flesche had made many phonetic records of the language by having the Indians sing and recite their legends for phonograph recording. He completed 12,000 words of the written record for the dictionary before he became ill, and the last week wrote to Brookbridge Jones of the Historical Society that he was able now to go on with the work.

The Institution is furnishing the necessary funds, beyond Marland's

DISPUTES OVER 73 CONVENTION SEATS AT KANSAS CITY

Six Contests Probably Will Not Be Pressed, However—Committee to Take Up Tangle Monday.

EX-SENATOR PEPPER TO BE IN CHARGE

Entire Republican Delegation of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi Are in Controversy.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Contests affecting 73 seats in the Kansas City convention have been recognized by the Republican National Committee, with the probability that those involving six will not be pressed.

The committee has been called to meet in Kansas City next Monday, eight days before the convention, to pass on the disputes which, in all but one case, Porto Rico, have arisen in Southern states. Former Senator Pepper, retiring National Committeeman from Pennsylvania, will be in charge of the hearings, and those who are not satisfied with the decisions will have the right to appeal to the Credentials Committee, to be named after the convention opens.

The entire delegations from three states—Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas—are in contest, as are nine of 10 Florida seats, the two from Porto Rico, three from Georgia, two from Kentucky, four from South Carolina and three from Tennessee.

Florida Disputes First. Word has been received, however, that the slate of four delegates at large from South Carolina, arrayed against Joe Tolbert, Republican National Committeeman, will not be presented for recognition, and it is expected that the contest involving the two convention seats allotted to the third Tennessee district also will drop by the wayside, factional differences having been adjusted.

George W. Bean, National Committeeman, heads one slate of delegates from Florida which is unopposed, while Glen B. Skipper of Miami, a Hoover adherent, leads the opposition group.

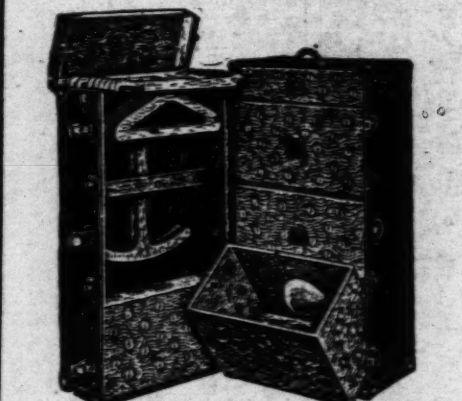

Louisiana Contest. In Louisiana, where all 12 delegates are contested, Emilio Kunta, national committeeman, is in one camp and Walter L. Cohen, Negro Comptroller of Customs at New Orleans, is in the other.

From Mississippi Perry W. Howard, Negro National Committeeman, heads one slate, while the "Lily White" opposition group includes former Gov. Shelton of Nebraska and Charles E. Gordon, former Postmaster of Chicago.

The fight involving the entire delegation of 26 from Texas is a show-down between R. B. Creager, national committeeman, and a coalition headed by C. C. Little of Fort Worth and Representative Wurzbach of San Antonio, the only Texas Republican in either house of Congress.

Just what effect settlement of the contests will have on the convention line-up in balloting for a presidential nominee remains to be seen. In most instances one set of the contestants are avowedly for Hoover, and in some cases have been included in the claims of Hoover managers as to delegate strength. A number of the contesting delegates have indicated hearings toward London or Dawn.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely grating news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

New Orleans Toll Bridge Bonds.

W HAT are toll bridge bonds really worth? is a question which finds a dramatic answer in what has happened in the past few days at New Orleans.

Certain St. Louis, New York, Chicago and New Orleans investment security houses promoted the Pontchartrain Bridge at the latter point. I have previously pointed out the fallacious and dangerous character of this undertaking, in view of threatened (and now assured) competition from the State of Louisiana.

In spite of "estimates" as to earnings, glowing promises of apocryphically large revenues from automobiles and other traffic, "water has finally sought its level"—and the first mortgage 7 per cent bonds of the New Orleans Pontchartrain Bridge Co., as well as the second mortgage 7 per cent bonds, yelped debentures, have been summarily stricken from the trading list of the New Orleans Stock Exchange.

In plain words, the Governing Committee of the Exchange has determined that the "wash sales" and other formulae so well known to the promoting gentry must cease. After citing the fluctuations of the first mortgage bonds having dropped from $9 to $5, with a subsequent jump to $8, the committee says that "it is obvious that a fair, open and representative market no longer exists" for the bridge issues. They may no longer be bought or sold on the New Orleans stock board.

Will a Nine Per Cent Cut Help?

THE street car men are well aware of their appearance, which is no fault of their own. Their company is ashamed of their looks. Wonder if the company thinks a 9 per cent cut will help. The men will soon be afraid to look in the mirrors.

A Daylight Saving Fan.

THANKS for your front page item on daylight saving for Indianapolis. Oh, that it might have been for St. Louis. What is the matter with St. Louis? It seems to me that our Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau and press are sound asleep. Not one advocated the greatest thing ever practiced for the benefit of the masses.

Of course, it is the same old story. After the other cities enjoy this wonderful privilege for 30 years, St. Louis will wake up to the fact that it is a good thing. Now comes the cry, oh, we can't have our Munny opera if we have daylight saving; oh, we won't have enough children come to our picture shows so we can't have more elaborate theaters.

Mr. Nicholson is right. All cities that have daylight saving are getting along all right, yes, better than old St. Louis when old foggy ideas are so prevalent.

Unemployment and the Elections.

NOT very long ago President Coolidge talked of the prosperity that the country is enjoying, told of plentiful employment and the high range of wages. Since then figures have been published showing the exceeding low state of employment. All manner of organizations have been interviewed and each and every one of them has stated that unemployment has passed the 1921 mark and is dangerously approaching the 1914 mark.

On May 28, a riot was staged when, as reported in the Post-Dispatch, "more than 400 men responded to the ad which ran in yesterday's newspapers and offered 40 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, plus a bonus for a full week." Only 30 laborers were wanted.

But—it is the presidential campaign upon which we are now embarking and the worker disillusioned as to the Coolidge prosperity that has been ranted about, will vote the Democratic ticket in force. After the election everything will be jim-dandy, there will be no more revelations as to unemployment conditions! The Democrats will have made the most of their opportunity and once again the workers will find themselves disillusioned.

All together, the campaign is one.

DON COOLEY.

More Hooch Joints Than Ever.

THERE are more places selling intoxicating beverages now than there ever were when licensed saloons were in operation. Soft drink parlors, buffets, confectioneries, pool halls and many homes are selling liquor. The young especially, because of easy access, are indulging more freely now than ever was known in the United States.

It was not put to a vote by the people to have prohibition. Why put it to a vote to modify or repeal? Take the law out the way they put it in.

AN EXPERIENCED OBSERVER.

THE NAVAL COLLAPSE.

It was the contradiction of asking the rest of the world to join with us in peace on one hand and advocating a big naval program on the other that caused the surprising naval collapse in the session of Congress that has just closed.

Six months ago the Coolidge administration was giving its indorsement to a naval program which would eventually have cost more than $2,000,000,000. Immediate expenditures of Secretary Wilbur's program, which was in addition to the maintenance of the navy we already have, would have been $740,000,000. It is a sum of money in excess of all the endowments for education accumulated by the institutions of the United States after 300 years of civilization.

The big navy crowd was jubilant. The Geneva conference had failed, and it was no secret in Washington that we were going out for naval parity with England. The House Committee on Naval Affairs authorized by a vote of 15 to 1 the construction of 15 cruisers. It also voted to commit the Government to a five-year program, irrespective of peace developments. That is, it would have tied the President's hands. Admiral Plunkett was saying that war with England is inevitable. Admiral Hughes admitted that even with the Wilbur program we would not be secure. Mr. Wilbur himself went to Boston, where, in a public speech, he spoke disparagingly of Senator Borah and other opponents of the big navy program and came out flatly upon the side of the jingoes.

It was a mania. As recently as January of this year it was like a prairie fire which threatened to consume everything before it. The British were amazed. Our own press scarcely knew what to think of it. Now it is the deadest thing in the United States. What happened? We feel that this is not a difficult question to answer. The country is sick of war, and it is by no means convinced that to attempt naval parity with England would not involve us in one. It is the habit of England when she is in trouble to form combinations, as both Napoleon and William II found out. There is no reason why the United States should drive her to this same resort, and if it can keep its head it will not do so. Indeed, it is more interested in the effort made by Mr. Kellogg to bring about peace.

The Kellogg treaties have the weakness of all paper, but they are nevertheless symptomatic of the world-wide desire for peace. The big navy program was insanity. It breathed defiance, and would have made war. The country was not long in making up its mind as to that. By the time the House had voted the cruiser program the Admirals were on the dump heap and the jingoes were done. In one of the most magnificent demonstrations of power that the country has ever witnessed, public opinion said, No! It had observed (1) that the Coolidge administration is more interested in its peace treaties than it is in the Wilbur program; (2) that England, which needs peace as much as the rest of the world needs it, is abating her own big navy program; (3) that only the strutting Admirals and fire-breathing jingoes wanted the Wilbur program; (4) and that the United States was about to commit the folly of becoming too bumptious.

So it was that the 15-cruiser program never got beyond the House. The thing was beaten, and it will stay beaten. If the navy needs cruisers for its reasonable needs, it can get them any time it wants them. It failed to get anything from the last session of Congress because it wanted to do with the United States Navy what Emperor William did with the German army.

BUSINESS AND MORALS.

"Prohibition was a failure when urged because it was right. It went through like a shot when practical business men became convinced that it was good business," said Dr. A. E. Bostwick, St. Louis Librarian, to the American Library Association meeting this week at West Baden.

Per contra, when practical business men become convinced that it is not good business, it will go like a shot. To become as realistic as that, and not to confuse living forces with duds, one apparently could do worse than to live among books.

We congratulate Dr. Bostwick upon his perspicacity. That is a big word, but he has it.

The new tax bill throws out the 3 per cent automobile sales tax, and the dealer will soon complete the double play by passing the reduction on to the consumer.

SPEED THE AIRPORT.

Maj. Lambert is earnestly opposed to postponement of a vote on the $2,000,000 airport bond issue. He voiced his objection at a meeting of civic representatives, whose consensus was that it would be unwise to submit the bond issue at the presidential election. It was urged that the airport proposal might be defeated if it were included with strictly political issues.

We doubt the cogency of this argument. St. Louis has become air-minded since Lindbergh's flight. It has seen other cities spending great sums on airport facilities. It is, we believe, convinced that St. Louis must get ready for the air age. There is a widespread popular feeling that we have already lagged lamentably in capitalizing the enormous publicity this city has received aerially, and in making the most of St. Louis' strategic position as an air center. It is doubtful that the presidential race, no matter how interesting it may become, could overshadow this local item.

Besides, as Maj. Lambert points out, there are some very practical reasons for presenting the airport bond issue in November, or before. The city's option on 200 acres of land necessary for the proposed airport expires on Nov. 15, nine days after the election, and to renew that option might be a costly transaction for the city. On another piece of land the city holds an option from Maj. Lambert that expires in March. These and many other details urge quick action.

It is true the city has other needs, and that it will probably be necessary before long to consolidate them in a large bond issue, as St. Louis did in 1923. If the airport bond issue were included, the whole sale would have a better chance of success. But as to what items should constitute another large bond issue is a subject for further planning and discussion, whereas the airport item is beyond controversy. Let's be sure of getting the airport or we are likely to find ourselves hopelessly behind the times in an age when aviation progress is a swiftly moving phenomenon.

CHINA FAMINE RELIEF.

Famine and pestilence are the accompaniments of war, and in China, where famine threatens practically every year and is now prevailing in large, thickly populated districts, the condition is intensified by the raging civil war.

Reports from newspaper correspondents in China reveal horrible conditions in large groups of the population. They say there is nothing in the records of history to compare with the present situation, with the migration of starving Chinese who are struggling to get to Manchuria, where land is free and where they expect to find food. The emigration is estimated to reach 2,000,000. These people are without food and must be cared for or they will die of starvation. Sons are killing their parents to keep them from the pangs of starvation, and parents are killing their children. In many villages there are so many dead that the bodies cannot be given proper burial. Pestilence is feared.

The well-to-do Chinese and foreigners are working together to relieve suffering. One correspondent says that there were in Tsinan every morning at 8 o'clock at least 30,000 cold, hungry people waiting for the one meal a day which is doled out to keep them from death. They are famine refugees who have walked that far after abandoning their homes and farms.

Public attention has been centered more upon the war and its political aspects than on the famine conditions. Both Chinese and foreigners have organized at Shanghai to relieve suffering. They have raised what funds they can and have an efficient organization, but are wholly unable to meet conditions. They have neither funds nor the organization necessary to save 10,000,000 Chinese who are faced with starvation.

To help out the Chinese organization there has been organized in this country a national committee for China famine relief. It is headed by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of New York and includes a large group of prominent laymen and churchmen. The committee appeals to Americans to contribute a fund of $10,000,000. The committee is laying thorough plans not only for immediate relief but to establish the helpless Chinese on large areas to raise food products in future. The plan is to give this development work to Chinese who are able to work.

No matter what may be the outcome of the civil conflict in China or its political aspects, Americans who have always come to the relief of starving people the world over will, we believe, be moved by this appeal to save millions of helpless Chinese, wholly innocent of the causes of their suffering, from starvation. The treasurer of the China Famine Relief Committee is James A. Thomas, and its headquarters are at 419 Fourth avenue, New York.

TO THE SECOND DIVISION.

Its battleflags bear the lustrous names of Chateau-Thierry, Soissons, St. Mihiel, Blanc Mont and Argonne Forest. Its rolls carry the names of 5000 dead. It captured one-fourth of all the prisoners and artillery taken by the A. E. F. during the war. It contained the celebrated regiments of Fifth and Sixth Marines and the Ninth and Twenty-third Infantry regiments, who threw the Germans back on their last great drive to Paris. Among its members are Laurence Stallings, Thomas Boyd and Capt. John R. Thompson Jr., who immortalized their fellows in such brilliant pieces of war literature as "What Price Glory?" "Drums" and "Fix Bayonets."

We refer to the Second Division, which is meeting in St. Louis today for its annual reunion. Graying and a bit heavier around the paunch, the men in St. Louis today are the ones who electrified the world and startled the Germans by their savage fighting at a time when it seemed the cause of the allies was about to be lost. It was in June, 1918, that the Second Division was sent in to relieve a thin line of French who had been giving way steadily before a terrific German push. Now the Second faced the shelling of German artillery, crawled through the bloody wheat at Belleau Wood, smashing machine-gun nests and giving blow for blow until the gray-green tide broke, is one of the most glorious chapters in American history.

We salute and honor the men of the Second Division!

A GREAT EVIL—AND A REMEDY.

It is a shocking indictment, that statement of Judge Mulloy that perjury is committed in 75 per cent of the Circuit Court criminal trials at Clayton. If it be true—and there is no reason to doubt the soundness of Judge Mulloy's estimate of the situation—then is justice on its knees.

There is a remedy, however, and one that should be taken speedily if the machinery of the courts of justice is not to cease to function. Let Judges who hear perjured testimony forthwith issue bench warrants against the offending witness and let the prosecuting authorities follow the action up by swift action in the grand jury room. Let the perjurers see that the law means business, for when the courtroom oath loses its sanctity and falsehood overcomes truth before the law, chaos has come.

COURTESY ON THE PUBLIC LINKS.

Already certain minor mishaps have occurred on the Forest Park municipal golf links, which, while not important enough to find their way onto hospital records, have yet been painful in the extreme and conducive of bad feeling. In at least one case that we know of a player escaped death by a matter of an inch, or a fraction of an inch, and as it was received serious face injuries when struck by a driven ball.

"No player may play from a tee until the players in front are out of range, regardless of the number of strokes played," the rules for the municipal links state. Strict observation of this rule often requires the exercise of a considerable degree of patience, particularly on the nine-hole course where novices and beginners blithely top and dub their shots and skirlish through the rough for lost balls. Moreover, both courses are usually crowded and deliberate foursomes are the rule rather than the exception.

But if the municipal links are not to afford an actual hazard, entirely apart from the ubiquitous turnings of the River des Peres, there must be a regard not only for the letter of the law but for courtesy and the consideration of beginners' mischances, even in the face of a persistent hunt for lost balls. Otherwise the public links may come to resemble the front line trenches more than a golf course and stretcher bearers may be in order.

PALM TREES IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY.

Bowers, the Democratic Keynote

A Clossup of Claude G. Bowers as He Appeared in Washington on the Occasion of the Jackson Day Dinner; Slight of Weight, High of Brow, He Made a Vibrant, Stirring Speech That Brought the Audience to the Edge of Its Chairs.

MARK SULLIVAN in World's Work.

THE Jackson speaker arose. His appearance bore out the sad anticipations of the diners. He was short of stature, slight of weight, high of brow—just what cartoonists have taught the public to expect of historians and writers to be. He opened his mouth. At the first syllable, every sensitive listener recognized that peculiar timbre of voice that expresses vitality, emanates magnetism, and has the capacity, under the right circumstances, to start physical thrills up and down the spine. At the end of the first four sentences, every listener knew this speaker had appeal for the intellect as well as for the emotions. The opening sentences were:

One hundred years ago today, conditions in America had created a paramount issue—shall the Government be restored to the people, or shall it be made an instrumentality of monopoly for the exploitation of the average man? One hundred years ago this year, Andrew Jackson rallied the people to a memorable battle for the preservation of popular government and the subordination of money to man. The people responded, and Andrew Jackson won. And now, after just a hundred years, that paramount issue is back again; and the times demand that the party that Jackson led shall dedicate itself anew to the principles he fought for, and the policies he wrought for, and the victory he achieved.

Among the 1200 or more men and women who listened to Claude Bowers, probably there was not one to whom it had occurred that there might be any analogy between Andrew Jackson's day, and Calvin Coolidge's. That was 190 years ago and conditions one took it for granted, had changed utterly; the very spirit of the American people had fundamentally altered. Probably none of the diners, as they entered the room, had thought of the party as having any paramount issue or paramount concern; but prohibition and its attendant prejudices or convictions. But now Mr. Bowers went on with a speech in which neither the word "prohibition" nor the word "religion" was mentioned. And the exclusion was not merely a part of the mechanism for harmony. Mr. Bowers did not put any issues aside; he erected a new issue, by the device of visualizing a 160-year-old man. He told the story of Andrew Jackson's fight against the old United States Bank and its president, Nicholas Biddle of Philadelphia, and the forces of property and conservatism and respectability lined up behind the bank and Biddle; and he told the story of the party's fight against the party of the old United States Bank and its president, Nicholas Biddle of Philadelphia, and the forces of property and conservatism and respectability lined up behind the bank and Biddle; and he told the story of the party's fight against the party of the old United States Bank and its president, Nicholas Biddle of Philadelphia, and the forces of property and conservatism and respectability lined up behind the bank and Biddle.

When Andrew Jackson assumed the leadership of his party, political power had been concentrated into the hands of a comparative few, acting under the inspiration of the most powerful moneyed institution that this nation had then known. This invisible government was dictating policies to the representatives of the people. It was maintaining a lobby here in Washington that had become more influential in the molding of legislation than public opinion, or the President. Through-out the country it controlled to a considerable extent the press and the agencies of propaganda. In almost every city of any size it had its so-called nonpartisan societies and clubs, responsive to the will of the financial dictator of the nation. Through the instrumentality of the bank it coerced business men, dependent upon credit, into the doing of its will. Through the subversion of the protected industries it was intimidating voters in elections. And by throwing over the system a glamour of snobbery, and by superciliously assuming a superiority of culture, it had seduced or dragged a large part of the intelligentsia into its ranks. Thus the Jacksonians found the financiers against them, the beneficiaries of governmental graft against them, the greater portion of the press against them, a large per cent of the professional intellectuals against them. And against this combination, with all its money and prestige of power, Jackson led the people to a victory that literally preserved popular government for posterity and gave reality to the Democratic philosophy of Jefferson.

One listened. One thrilled. The diners came forward to the edges of their chairs. They applauded. They cheered. They rose and cheered. Will Rogers, the humorist, moved almost to ecstasy at discovering a new recruit for the fraternity of successful speakers, leaped down between two of his Indian cheers to call out to a friend: "Say, that little guy's a regular fellow; he's going to get somewhere."

Mr. Bowers' speech in many respects was on a plane with Bryan's "cross of gold" speech—excluding some similarities of fallacy and of defect in the analogy between Jackson's day and this, that did not read so well in the cold logic of the following day as it had sounded when suffused with the emotion of oratory. Had Mr. Bowers' speech been delivered, as Bryan's was, to a national convention engaged in nominating a presidential candidate, instead of at a dinner, it might readily have had a corresponding outcome. As it was, the speech was a landmark in the party's recent history. It seemed at the moment and for some time after—to give a new direction to the party's course, though as to that we shall not know with certainty until the convention in June.

Meantime, it is understood that the keynote speech of the Houston convention is to be made by the man who made the Jackson day speech, Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer on The New York Evening World and author of "The Party Battles of the Jacksonian Period," and of "Jefferson and Hamilton." Anybody who has studied American political history as much as he has cannot possibly fail to reflect on an incident and a fact—Bryan's "cross of gold" speech that occasionally won the presidential nomination for an unknown young man; and the fact that a fate that must have been politically predestined picked Indiana as Mr. Bowers' birthplace.

Annual Social Benefit Ho
try Estate Where B
Gathered in Days B

CAPRICIOUS SPRING ruled the third annual country carnival held yesterday at Hazelwood, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce at Kinloch, St. Louis County, for the benefit of the projected St. Louis University Hospital.

In the space of six hours crowded with gaiety, movement and color, Spring was a stage director lavishly with settings, pep leader, a generous and lovely Queen and, in a final burst of petulance, an ugly tyrant drenching the affair in rain. To vary the metaphor in keeping with the occasion, Spring at the start was a charming debutante selling cigarettes for the charity's sake and ended up as the wild woman among the sidewalk freaks.

$12,000 Received. More Expected. The deluge came at 3:30 o'clock after the carnival had almost spent itself. The balance sheet, after more than 500 charity workers marshaled from social ranks had turned in money collected at 27 booths and at the gate, showed total receipts for the afternoon of approximately $9700. Checks sent by brought the total to $12,000 and additional contributions from persons unable to attend the affair are expected to send the total to $15,000. Last year the carnival, held at August A. Busch's country place, Grant's Farm, netted $25,000 and the first carnival $5000. The new hospital, to be built when the necessary $1,250,000 is secured, will face the St. Louis University Medical School on Grand boulevard and Caroline street and will supersede the old infirmary on Papin street.

5000 Estimated Attendance. Business men, released from downtown offices by the Memorial day holiday, drove out the Natural Bridge and Brown roads to the 160-acre Fordyce estate in the blooming Florissant valley with their families and well-lined pockets. They went early and joined the throng of debutantes, society matrons, youth in bright spring dress, priests from St. Louis University and Catholic children who milled about the booths.

Approximately 5000 persons, it was estimated, passed up the broad avenue of maple trees leading to the old Colonial home in front of which the carnival held forth, a vivid patch of color against the verdant landscape of the countryside. Ticket takers at the gate collected $882.75 from 3215 persons. The difference in attendance figure was accounted for by the small army of charity workers and hundreds of children who came to mingle in the carnival crowd with their parents.

Atmosphere of Bygone Romance. The carnival had a perfect setting in Hazelwood, with its groves of oaks and maples, its well-kept old mansion and atmosphere of romance and bygone days of entertainment and merriment. It has a history dating back to 1807, when the fertile Florissant valley was filled with early French and Spanish settlers. It was the scene of many social gatherings before and after the Civil War, when Maj. Richard Graham, Indiana agent for the Fox and Sac tribes, and Gen. D. M. Frost of Civil War fame, were entertained here.

The French, we learn from our own varied reading, prefer American tobacco. This seems to imply that what the French smoke ordinarily is tobacco.

Indiana politics are a thing of the past, either the candidate's or the other fellow's. Yielding in gallantry to no man's claim, however, that calling it an impartial pageant of pulchritude seems to have no effect on the pulchritude of the scene.

While on the subject of that spirit in Republican ranks in Texas, what we are trying to figure out is if either faction secured a sufficient number of votes to justify the motion.

5000 at Spring Carnival Contribute $12,000 to Fund For St. Louis U. Hospital

Annual Social Benefit Held at Fordyce Country Estate Where Beaux and Belles Gathered in Days Before Civil War.

CAPRICIOUS SPRING ruled the third annual country carnival held yesterday at Hazelwood, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce at Kinloch, St. Louis County, for the benefit of the projected St. Louis University Hospital.

In the space of six hours crowded with gaiety, movement and color, Spring was a stage director lavishly with settings, pep leader, a generous and lovely Queen and, in a final burst of petulance, an ugly drenching of the affair in rain.

To vary the metaphor in keeping with the occasion, Spring at the start was a charming debutante selling cigarettes for charity's sake and ended up as the wild woman among the sideshow freaks.

$12,000 Received, More Expected. The deluge came at 8:30 o'clock after the carnival had almost spent itself. The balance sheet, which showed more than 500 charity workers marshaled from social ranks had turned in money collected at 27 booths and at the gate, showed total receipts for the afternoon of approximately $12,000. Checks sent in brought the total to $12,000 and additional contributions from persons unable to attend the affair are expected to send the total to $15,000.

Last year the carnival, held at August A. Busch's country place, Grant's Farm, netted $25,000, and the first carnival $5000.

The new hospital, to be built when the necessary $1,000,000 is secured, will face the St. Louis University Medical School on Grand boulevard and Caroline street and will supersede the old infirmary on Papin street.

5000 Estimated Attendance.

Business men, released from downtown offices by the Memorial day holiday, drove out the Natural Bridge and Brown roads to the 140-acre Fordyce estate in the blooming Florissant valley with their families and well-laden pockets. They went early and joined the throng of debutantes, society matrons, youth in bright spring dress, priests from St. Louis University and Catholic institutions, and children who milled about the booths.

Approximately 5000 persons, it was estimated, passed up the broad avenue of maple trees leading to the old Colonial home in front of which the carnival held forth, a vivid patch of color against the verdant landscape of the country side. Ticket takers at the gate collected $583.75 from 3335 persons. The difference in attendance figures was accounted for by the small army of charity workers and hundreds of children who came to mingle in the carnival crowd with their parents.

Atmosphere of Bygone Romance. The carnival had a perfect setting in Hazelwood, with its groves of oaks and maples, its well-kept old mansion and atmosphere of romance and bygone days of entertainment and merriment. It has a history dating back to 1807, when the fertile Florissant valley was filled with early French and Spanish settlers. It was the scene of many social gatherings before and after the Civil War, when Maj. Richard Graham, Indian agent for the Fox and Sac tribes, and Gen. D. M. Frost of Civil War fame.

the minuet, Virginia reel, Italian dances and other dances with a large gallery looking on. Alex. Colomoni, former Yale fencing champion and Lieut. Hamon Smith of the Sixth Infantry, Jefferson Barracks, crossed swords in a fencing bout.

Younger Set Lead in Dancing.

Then the younger set, led by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lambert, as heads of the Dance Floor Committee, took charge and the dancing started, with the speakers shouting to the spectators: "Come on, get that lead out of your feet."

In the midst of a dancing contest, out of which Robert Orthwein and Miss Grace Moulton emerged as winners of the $5 prize, a few big drops of rain splashed on the dance floor. The crowd began to disperse.

On the other side of the carnival grounds, Norman Kinchelo, 15-year-old Maplewood High School athlete, had raced from the head of a field of 35 runners, winner of a 13 1/4-mile marathon race that started at the St. Louis University gymnasium, West Pine boulevard near Spring avenue, in one hour and 34 minutes. He received a silver cup. Behind him came Alvin Chittie, also of the Maplewood High School, and John P. Keefe, 40 years old, and his 17-year-old son, John P. Jr., running the finish in a dead heat.

Shortly before the rain started, the Sixth Infantry band from Jefferson Barracks arrived and there was a flag raising ceremony before the wide veranda of the mansion. In the maple grove north of the house, a country dinner was served, with Virginia ham and Southern salad among the dishes.

The rain cut short the evening's program, which was to have included entertainers from the Garden Theater, headed by Leon Errol. In the absence of Errol, Mrs. Francis Lee of Princeton, and her family, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins Brown of Providence, R. I. Mrs. Brown, before her marriage in January, was Miss Virginia Garrett. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, who have been in Europe for their honeymoon landed in New York this week. Another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Richard Stuart, has Miss Virginia Garrett, III, and her family have a cottage next to the Garrett home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Moore of New York will arrive Saturday to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser of Anheuser road, Sunset Hill Country Club grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Anheuser will give a garden party Sunday afternoon.

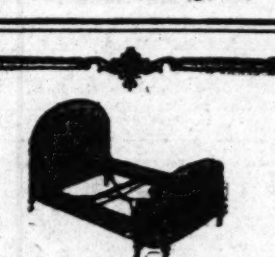

Officers and Chairman.

The general officers of the carnival were August A. Busch, honorary chairman; Mrs. James M. Francis, general chairman, and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce, Mrs. William Julius Polk, Mrs. George S. Tiffany, Mrs. Edward J. Walsh Jr., Mrs. Joseph Falk and Mrs. J. D. Perry Francis, directors.

Probably the largest committee was in charge of the supper, with Mrs. Robert Holland as chairman, assisted by a group of matrons and about 28 young women chosen from the younger set and dressed in white with green oilcloth aprons and head bands, who served as waitresses.

The cigarette girls, with attractive colored scarves knotted about their heads, were in charge of Mrs. Anheuser.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Less Wise Than His Story

GEORGIE MAY. By Maxwell Bodenheim. (Eon & Lippincott.)

His latest novel Maxwell Bodenheim tells with exceeding frankness and many a mouthful of appropriate vulgarity the life story of a street walker. It's what the critics call a "daring" book. It would be hard to say why, since there seems to be no peril involved.

Whatever the literary police of Boston may think of this latest bid for the approval and shekels of a public very low in its mind, it must be said that such a book, in comparison with the subtleties of the super-sophisticated now so fashionable, is quite innocuous. For so far as the story itself is concerned, there is no attempt in "Georgie May" to make the worse appear the better reason.

No one who knows anything about the subject treated in the book, as a less self-conscious expert knowledge of the life he describes, and apparently he omitted no detail that could possibly add to a sane reader's disgust. Also, the poor little drab, who plays the leading role, is a little logically committed suicide in the end. The sort of life under consideration is fairly represented as a total loss.

Unfortunately, Bodenheim is not always content to let the story speak for itself, as a less self-conscious author would have done. He has felt it incumbent upon him to be shockingly iconoclastic in keeping with the fashion of the day, and accordingly he often interrupts the truly terrific logic of the tale itself with his own ill-advised comment. That is to say, he himself seems not to realize that in the objective life-pattern he traces with absolute fidelity to fact there is a cumulative, impersonal wisdom far surpassing his own childish attempts to seem wise.

Preposterous as it may seem, Bodenheim gives much evidence that he believes, which is worse, that we find the essential truth about womanhood only in the drunken harlot, and that all so-called "decent" women are simply and necessarily hypocrites. One hesitates to say that Bodenheim is unfortunate in his mother and sisters, if any? Addressing Georgie May in one of his sentimental monologues, he says: "Other women operate their sex with the putrid, fearful repudiation known as virginity."

THE EMPEROR.

For those who read the fact that James M. Barrie was born and wrote books has made the world a better place. This is a first-rate biography and sound criticism of the whimsical Scotsman and his writings, done in appreciation and without hero worship.

THE HOTEL.

By Elizabeth Bowen. (Lincoln MacVegh, The Dial Press.)

Miss Bowen undoubtedly has a style and an ability to create brilliant dialogue worthy of the wide distribution given a book-of-the-month (70,000 copies by the latest publisher's advertisement). The story, if modern sophisticated novels may be said to have such, is interesting enough too, but action is subordinated to talk, for the characters do little more than gather about their sumer hotel to chat about themselves.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 31.

THERE is little doubt the champion Gene Tunney has proved himself a conspicuous social success this season—not only in New York, but in Florida. He has frequently told intimates he cares nothing for the popularity of the mob.

"The one thing I do not want," he once told me, "is popularity." And he has shown a stubborn resistance to trucking to back-slappers. The doors of the most aristocratic homes have been opened to him. He has been a guest at dinners to which social climbers have vainly sought bids for years.

Those who have seen him in his gatherings say no one present is more at home. His hosts and hostesses have not been those who go out to bag every new celebrity who appears on the horizon. It is no exaggeration to say he has mingled with what society scribblers often term "the social creme de la creme."

Few men have been able to achieve the sartorial splendor of Tunney in dinner jacket or tuxedo. His hand goes naturally to the right fork or spoon, he is adept at polite but inconsequential small talk as well as discussing topics in a higher realm. He is even tolerant with those who call him "Mr. Tunney."

His taste for literature has not been stressed. He was, long before he became champion, a keen admirer of Keats and Shelley. He has drunk deep of good literature and discusses it more entertainingly than he does when talk turns to prize fighting.

His enemies have tried to magnify these traits into proportions of snobbery, but the truth seems to be he has done exactly what pleased him. Broadway's frenetic razzle-dazzle has not interested him. He has been seen in the usual haunts of former champions.

He frequently attends the theater, and his choice runs to serious dramas. Flappers hold no charms for him. If he appears in public with a feminine companion she is not a flapper.

Several New York columnists give their readers the impression there is an army of people constantly clamoring for information on how to write a newspaper column. My own experience differs. Not as many ask me how I write a column as they.

It's like a trip abroad!
and all magnificently American

... a land of
Romance, Adventure

To enjoy the wonders of Southern California this summer is to see and do more new, strange things than probably any other vacation trip could offer.

No rain should mar a moment of your stay. Day temperatures are moderate with low humidity, but nights are cool. Bring light wraps. You will sleep under blankets nine nights out of ten.

Read this message, then start making plans to come. Consult your nearest railroad ticket agent about special low round trip rates, May 15 until October 31. You may visit the entire Pacific Coast for small extra expense. And, while here, you can visualize this vast Southwest Empire at the "Pacific Southwest Exposition" to be held at Long Beach, from July 27 through August.

Los Angeles is the gateway to all this fascinating scenic land, as well as to Hawaii and the Orient. From this Pacific Coast metropolis every interest point is quickly accessible. The High Sierra (tallest mountains in the country and snow capped all summer) are but a few hours away.

Driving to such charming Southland cities as San Diego, San Bernardino, Riverside, Pasadena and Ojai, you may visit the Old Spanish Missions. Roads unexcelled anywhere, lead you through vast orange, lemon and walnut groves.

Southern California's coast line—extending from Santa Barbara to Mexico—is one surprise after another! At many points mountains rise abruptly from the sea; then broad, smooth, safe beaches continue for miles. Every form of aquatic sport is here. Charming ocean-side cities like Santa Barbara, Santa Monica, Long Beach, Laguna, La Jolla, Newport and a dozen others offer cosmopolitan entertainment with fine hotels and luring beach clubs.

Golf? 65 ever-green courses are within easy distance of Los Angeles; tennis is everywhere at hand. Mountain trails offer new saddle sport.

Los Angeles will delight you with its growth and activity. Here are great hotels, theatres, cafes—everything you may wish for. Los Angeles County is among the richest in the country. You may drive on broad boulevards through its oil fields valued at a billion dollars. Last year it produced agricultural products worth approximately $92,000,000.

Mail the coupon for an authentic 52-page illustrated vacation book. Consult your railroad ticket agent. Start making definite plans to come this summer—sure—by one of the transcontinental railroads, or drive out.

SLAYER OF NEW YORK GIRL TO BE HANGED IN PRAGUE

Life Sentence and 15 Years in Prison for His Two Accomplices.

By the Associated Press. PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 31.—John Michalko, journalist and politician, was sentenced to death by hanging here yesterday by a court which convicted him of murdering the naturalized American girl, Margit Voerdeemart of New York.

Dr. Klepetar, tried with him, was convicted also and sentenced to life imprisonment, while a third man, Sikorsky her brother-in-law on the basis of whose story the others were first arrested, was given 15 years imprisonment.

Margit Voerdeemart vanished in July, 1926, her body afterward being discovered buried in a sand hole in the Carpathian Mountains, and bearing evidence of strangulation. Sikorsky said Michalko and Klepetar had taken her walking, subsequent to a mock marriage between her and Michalko, and in the course of the walk had strangled her to death, burying her body in a hole while he looked on. Michalko has held various high political posts.

BREMEN IS BADLY DAMAGED
Monoplane Will Have to Be Dis-mantled for Shipment.

By the Associated Press. CURLING, N. F., May 31.—The steamer Sagona arrived here yesterday from the scene of the wreck of the German trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen near Greenland, with the report that the plane would have to be dismantled before it could be taken aboard the steamer.

The Sagona visited the wreck after the North German Lloyd line had asked the Newfoundland Government Railway to aid in transporting the Bremen to a point where it could be shipped to New York. The Captain of the Sagona reported that the monoplane, which crashed as Fred Melchior, Junkers pilot, was taking off in an attempt to fly the craft to New York, was on the ice about a mile from shore and was badly damaged.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs and pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

TWO NEGROES GET TWO YEARS FOR KILLING MAN WITH AUTO

One Confesses Stealing Car and Other Admits He Was Driving When It Hit Thomas Stephens.

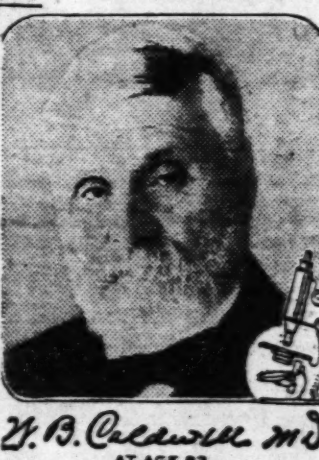

Two Negroes who were riding in a stolen automobile when it struck and killed Thomas Stephens, 818 North Seventeenth street, at Franklin avenue and Sixteenth street March 17, today were sentenced to two-year penitentiary terms when they pleaded guilty of manslaughter and larceny.

The Negroes, William Taborn and Homer Williams, failed to stop at the accident scene but were arrested in the neighborhood. They contradicted each other as to which one was driving at the time of the accident, but finally Taborn pleaded guilty of manslaughter and Williams confessed stealing the car.

OUT WIELDING INFLUENCE.

Who lock them to demonstrate their own belief in their own judgment. But they are also incurring a heavy price by extinguishing the light of their own souls' advancement—and the law of the boomerang will return to them the frustration of their own hearts' desires.

The other beings who, in their phoric, hand out to the world, they come in contact with, boys and girls, just stop and think before you express an opinion about the actions of friends and relations—or use your influence upon them. Think, "If I do so shall be looking a door or handling a key to progress for them?" To have influence is a great responsibility, but if it is used unwisely you will assuredly draw the unpleasant consequences to yourself.

Perfect Salad Dressings

NEW FINGER BOWLS.

THE few rare pieces of original Sandwich glass left to us from the past must stand astonished on the shelves to see themselves reproduced so freely in so many colors by the glassmakers of today. They have a funny little ingrained charm which you either like very much or which you, decoratively speaking, simply does not exist.

They are to be had in bread and butter, small bowls, salad plates and the leaf-shaped little dishes with curled stem handles which serve so many uses as separate dishes. They have a particularly fresh look in the colors—the green, pink and yellow are much more effective for glass of this period than white.

A note as to finger bowls. The truly thrifty housewife who must make her tableware play many parts will be delighted with the new design in finger bowls. These are of thin glass, very clear, and made with a broad low stem. This makes them quite correct for finger bowl use as well as for serving sherberts of other suitable concoctions. Their character is daintiness, the glass being colorless at the top, faintly iridescent, shading into decided color at the base, which may be amber, green or pink.

Hands Artists Rave About

Whenever New York artists or photographers want an exquisite pair of hands for "close up" reproduction they call in Annette Grandin. She has hands of rare beauty that can stand "close up" reproduction because they are so delicately white and smooth.

"The secret," Miss Grandin says, "lies in my special care, or in the use of many lotions, but simply in the use of my own making. I get three ounces of Orchard White at the corner drug store and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a fine rub for the hands—markable, and at the same time perfectly harmless skin. I rub this into my hands—also my neck and face—every night and this keeps my skin not only clear and white, but soft and smooth."

A Delicious New Jam You Can Make from STRAWBERRIES and PINEAPPLE in 15 minutes

This recipe for Mixed Pineapple and Strawberry Jam is very popular. No finer blend of flavors can be imagined than that of the delicately delicious strawberry with the refreshing tartness of ripe, juicy pineapple. Many women like this recipe, too, for its economy, since the pineapple makes your strawberries go so much further.

Crush to a fine pulp about 1 quart ripe berries. Put pineapple (fresh or canned) through food chopper, or chop very fine. Measure 2 level cups of each fruit into a large kettle. In case of slight shortage of one fruit, use enough of the other fruit to make 4 cups total. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard for 15 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in 1/2 cup Certo. Skim, pour quickly, and cover hot jam at once with hot paraffin wax.

Certo is the natural jellifying substance extracted from fruit, refined and bottled so that you may use it with all fruits to get a quick, perfect "set" without long boiling.

With the delicately flavored pineapple and strawberry the advantages of the Certo method are especially noticeable. For Certo not only makes these difficult fruits jell perfectly every time, but the short boil, possible only with Certo, prevents the loss of fresh flavor and color which occurs during long boiling.

"Certo way the best way" says eminent cooking expert Miss Alice Bradley, Principal, Miss Farmer's School of Cookery and Confectionery, Woman's Home Companion, says—"One trial will convince you that the best way to make jams and jellies is the Certo Way."

Your grocer has Certo. A book of simple, tested recipes comes under the label of each bottle.

The HUMAN BODY

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Just Like Any Engine Supplying Power, So the Organs of the Body Have Refuse Matter to Cast Off—Some, Physiological Facts.

VERY engine produces some waste products during the period of combustion—ash, smoke, soot. The body is an engine which is no exception to the rule.

We have followed the process of the reduction of the combustible food material to a useful state, which process we have called digestion; and the process of absorption of this material into the blood, the absorption of air from the lungs and its entrance into the blood, the distribution of food and air by the circulation of the blood to all parts of the body, and its utilization there by the tissues, which last process we have called nutrition or metabolism. It is really, as we have repeated over and over, a kind of combustion or burning, and certain waste products result. The most constant of these is water.

A molecule of water always forms as glucose, the great energizer of the body, is burned. The next most constantly formed waste product is carbon dioxide. Then, of course, the nondigestible residue of food must be got rid of. In the breaking down of tissue and in the utilization of albuminous or protein matter, nitrogenous waste products are formed, the most constant of which are urea, uric acid, creatinine and creatia.

All of these substances must be thrown off by the body, first because they are useless, second because in some instances they are poisonous, third because they are in the way. Various parts of the body share in the functions of excretion, each doing its part. The bowels excrete in the stool the end products of digestion; the lungs excrete water and carbon dioxide. The skin excretes, in the form of perspiration, water and some salts and a few nitrogenous bodies; perspiration is constant, winter and summer, though the amount is counted the primary heat regulatory function of the perspiration, more profuse in summer.

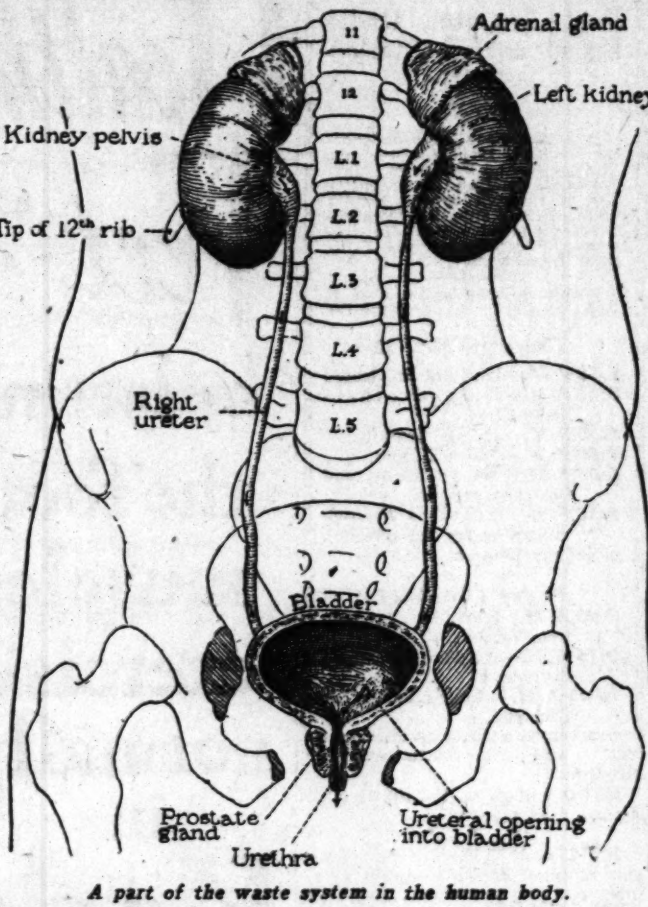

The chief excretory route of the end products of albuminous nutrition and tissue waste is by way of the kidneys. The urinary system consists of two kidneys, each of which secretes urine into a closed space, the pelvis of the kidney; of two tubes, the ureters, which conduct the urine from the kidneys to the bladder; of the bladder, a hollow muscular organ, guarded by a circular muscle, largely but not entirely under control of the will, and a short canal, the urethra, which conducts the urine from the bladder to the outside.

The excretion of urine is made possible by the selective action of the cells of the kidney tubules. The blood is brought to these cells and then spread out through a thin capillary network called the glomerulus; it is a mesh ball of blood-vessels. As the blood courses through the capillary glomerulus, the kidney-cells take up (1) water, (2) salts (such as sodium chloride and ammonia), and (3) waste bodies (particularly the nitrogenous waste bodies such as urea, uric acid, creatinine, and creatia). All of these waste bodies result from the breakdown of albuminous or protein material. The ammonia, urea, uric acid and creatinine are almost entirely the end products of food waste. The creatia probably comes exclusively from the breakdown of the muscles, the living muscles of the body. It is always increased in wasting diseases, fevers, etc. After the kidney-cells remove these substances from the blood, they are washed out of the tubules into the pelvis of the kidney, down the ureter, into the bladder, and then cast off by the act of urination.

The process of urine secretion goes on constantly, at the rate of about a drop every 30 seconds from each kidney. Every physician now has seen this with his own eyes, because the modern genito-urinary surgeon, by sticking a cystoscope into the bladder, can see the opening of the ureters and can place a fine catheter or hollow tube into each and collect urine from each kidney separately. The tubes hang out, dripping into glass tubes so that anyone may see the rate of flow. They also utilize this method to determine the rate of secretion of dyes in each kidney, a matter which will be taken up below.

The most frequent and constant use of the cystoscope is to determine whether blood or pus in the urine is coming from both kidneys or only from one; this is important and otherwise unobtainable information, because, of course, if blood or pus comes only from one kidney, the urine in the bladder will become mixed and homogeneous; it will all be blood or pus and there may be no pain or symptom to show from which side the blood or pus comes. It would be impossible to tell this merely by an examination of the urine. But with a catheter stuck in each ureter the urine from each kidney drops into separate bottles and the one which is forming the pus can easily be determined.

The rate of urinary flow may be increased by various agents, which are known in medicine as diuretics. The best known are coffee and tea, which probably act by stimulating the kidney-cells directly. Other agents, such as digitalis, owe their diuretic action to the increased blood-flow they cause through the kidney glomerulus. A favorite diuretic now in general use is synthetic gin.

It is easy to see that in the kidney itself an interference with the normal excretion of urine may arise either because the kidney-cells become diseased or because the walls of the kidney blood-vessels become thickened. This last condition practically always occurs as the general process of thickening of the arteries advances. It is, in fact, one of the earliest changes noted in the entire arterial system.

Hypertension or arteriosclerosis, therefore, always has associated some changes in the kidneys and a certain amount of kidney or renal failure. Many substances can so affect the kidney epithelium as to render it more or less inert or more or less reduced in ability to excrete urine. This "more or less" may range from complete suppression of urine to inability to excrete certain products normally excreted by the kidneys. The substances which affect the kidney-cells in this way are first the toxins or poisons of infectious diseases. Scarlet fever is a good instance in which the attendant physician and nurse are always on the lookout for the onset of kidney disease. Diphtheria is another. Focal infection or those concealed infections in teeth-roots and tonsils and the gall-bladder are others. A second class of destructive substances are salts of mercury. Death from mercury poisoning is in most cases due to kidney epithelium destruction.

Voters League Leader Likes Art

ART and politics may seem far apart but in the life of Miss Adele Clark of Richmond, Va., they go hand in hand.

Miss Clark is second vice president of the National League of Women Voters, and when she is not making reports to the State Legislature or serving on civic committees, she is to be found in her studio busy with her brush and paint.

She will make the legislative report at the opening session of the league's annual convention in Chicago April 22-25, and she will be busy making pencil sketches and notes up to the very minute of her scheduled report. She always carries a small notebook, where notes on league work are interspersed with sketches of league workers, a passing scene from a railroad window, or a street character.

Miss Clark has had a leading part in suffrage and political life in Virginia for 17 years. When the suffrage league was formed in that State, she became its secretary. She was instrumental in calling the gathering in Virginia when the State Woman Voters' League was organized, and was its president until 1925.

Recipes of a Bon Vivant

VEAL CUTLETS EN PAPILLOTES.

SIX veal cutlets, 1/2 pound of pork sausage meat, 1/2 can of mushrooms, 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 clove of garlic, salt and pepper to taste.

Use for this young and tender veal cutlets cut very carefully. Fry the chops, after seasoning well in butter very slowly, and when cooked take out of the frying pan and put in a dish. Put a tablespoon of butter into a deep frying pan. Add half a pound of sausage meat, and a half can of mushrooms, finely chopped. Mix well and season with salt and pepper. Add a clove of garlic, minced, and let it cook for five minutes. Take pieces of white foolscap paper, cut them in cone or pyramid-shaped pieces of the size of the cutlets. Fold the edges very nicely, doubling the paper to form a half-diamond, or cone. Then roll the paper well with sweet oil. Take the stuffing of sausage meat and put a layer on one side of the fold of each cone. Lay the chop diagonally across this, so that the end reaches the tip of the cone, and spread over this another layer of the stuffing. Fold the paper over neatly around the edges and then oil well on the outside. Bake in an oven, or lay on top of a gridiron and broil until brown. This will be in about five minutes. They will need no gravy, the oil having slightly permeated, and the chops being kept delicate and juicy by the dressing. Serve hot in the papillotes, the guests removing them at the table. This is a very dainty way of serving veal cutlets, and is the only way of serving them in papillotes.

CREOLE JAMBALAYA.

JAMBALAYA is a Spanish-Creole dish, says Joseph Leiter in his book of Favorite Old Recipes, which is a great favorite in New Orleans. It is made according to the following recipe:

One and one-half cups rice, one pound fresh pork, one slice ham, one dozen fine chaurices (pork sausages), one onion, one tablespoon of butter, two cloves of garlic, two sprigs each of thyme and parsley, two bay leaves, three quarts of beef broth or hot water (broth preferred), one-half teaspoonful of chili pepper, salt, pepper and cayenne to taste.

The pork, both lean and fat, should be cut very fine, that is, into pieces about half an inch square. Chop the onions and mince the garlic and fine herbs. Put a tablespoonful of butter into the saucepan and add the onions and pork, letting them brown slowly. Stir frequently, and let them continue browning slightly. At this stage add the slice of ham, which has been chopped very fine, and the garlic. Then add the minced herbs, thyme, parsley, bay leaf and cloves. Let all this brown for five minutes longer and add the broth or water, always using the broth in preference. Let it all cook for 10 minutes, and when it comes to a boil add the rice, which has been carefully washed. Then add to this a half teaspoonful of chili pepper, and salt and cayenne to taste. The Creoles season highly with cayenne. Let all boil for a half hour longer, or until the rice is firm, and serve hot.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Longbill Shows His Bill

Often things you can't explain, When understood are very plain.

—Cubby Bear.

CUBBY BEAR'S eyes opened very wide. You know, his eyes are not so big for his size, as they are in some other folk. But they were big and round now. He had just watched Longbill the Woodcock bore a hole in the earth and draw out a worm, and he couldn't understand it at all.

"How did you know that worm was down there?" demanded Cubby.

Longbill answered with another question. "Didn't you see me flapping?"

Cubby nodded. "Yes, but I listened, too, and I didn't hear anything," said he. "Even if you did hear it, how could you tell when you reached it? You didn't see it."

"Certainly not," replied Longbill. "It wasn't necessary to see it. If a flea bites you, you don't have to see it to know that a flea bit you, do you?"

Cubby blinked his eyes. "Say," said he, "we're not talking about fleas, we're talking about worms. Do you mean me to understand that that worm bit you?"

"Certainly not," retorted Longbill. "How foolish! That worm couldn't have bitten if it wanted to. Earthworms don't bite. You are not very smart, Cubby Bear. What I meant you to understand was that I have a sense of feeling. Let me put it another way. If you put your paw down on a stick, you don't have to look to see that it is a stick, do you?"

"No," said Cubby. "I could tell by the sense of feeling."

"Exactly," replied Longbill, "exactly. I can tell when I have reached a worm by the sense of feeling. I don't have to see it."

Cubby scratched his head and then wrinkled his forehead. "Excuse me, Mr. Longbill," said he, "but what do you feel with?"

"My bill, of course. What else should I feel with?" replied Longbill.

"But—but how can you feel with a thing like that?" demanded Cubby. "And even if you can feel with it, how can you open it and take hold of the worm?"

Now, I suspect that if Longbill could have grinned, he would have grinned right then and there. Yes, sir, I suspect that is just what he would have done. Instead, he walked just two or three steps nearer Cubby Bear. And then he did a funny thing. He opened his bill without opening his mouth. What I mean is this: He opened the lower part of his bill while the upper part remained closed tight.

"How did you know the worm was down there?" demanded Cubby.

The two parts of a bird's bill are called the mandibles. There is the lower mandible and the upper mandible. You know you have two lips—the lower lip and the upper lip. It is the same way with a bird's bill. The upper mandible takes the place of your upper lip, and the lower mandible takes the place of your lower lip.

Now, as Cubby looked at that long bill, he discovered that the upper mandible was lifted for about a third of its length. It was movable. It was easy to see how Longbill could take hold of a worm down in the ground.

"That is a handy bill," admiringly, "My," said Cubby, "admirably."

"It certainly is," replied Longbill proudly. "I can feel a worm with it and then I can grab it, and all the time my bill is down in the ground. So you see, I don't need my eyes to find the worm. Just let me hear a worm in the ground and if he isn't too far down, I'll get him. There's one right below me now."

Longbill thrust his handy bill down into the ground, and pulled out another worm, and left a nice, little round hole, just like the holes Cubby had first seen, which used to puzzle him so.

THREE GENERATIONS

by WARWICK DEEPIING

AUTHOR OF
"SORRELL AND SON"

SYNOPSIS

Old John Pybus, formerly a bookseller in London and later in Waterbury, is serving as a partner in an inn at Castle Craven where his son, Conrad, sees him there. He's been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war and they have lost track of him. Conrad hastens to tell his brother, Proby, that he has seen his father. Proby's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead.

INSTALLMENT VI

SHAME

LANCE sat down on the moss-stained stone seat. He still seemed to hear his father's voice suavely conspiratorial and bland. Sir Proby had said that he would drive over to Castle Craven—by himself, of course—and visit the Saracen's Head. He had suggested the making of certain proposals to John Pybus, proposals that included independence, a settled income of say, £500 a year, and a little house on the south coast or in the suburbs. Conrad had agreed to the proposals, but had shown a skepticism. "You might take this old horse to the water, but you could not make him drink."

And to Lance Pybus hidden in the Bosquet came the consciousness of shame. His father and his uncle were ashamed of their father—while he—But was his the same kind of shame? Was he not ashamed of their shame? Yet what did he know of old John Pybus, this grandfather of his, who was "boots" at a country inn? Might not the old boy be a shabby reprobate, an impossible man, a very solid skeleton hanging in the family cupboard?

What right had he to criticize his father? He could remember the double and secret shame of the last May week when Sir Proby and Lady Pybus had put up at the University Arms, and his people had met the people of his friends, and he had been conscious of tiring differences. His mother talked too much and too loudly. His father—What a beastly sensibleness was his!

Which was the more vulgar, a pretentious shame, or an obnoxious mortification in the presence of that shame?

He got up off that Roman seat, and, walking like a young prophet full of inward stirrings out into the sunlight, turned instinctively toward the Dutch garden and the splash of its little fountain.

His mother was there. She, too, liked glitter, was pleased as a child is pleased by a purple dress, all covered with silver sequins, but now her stoutness had to be more decorously draped. But at night—on state occasions—she had taken to wearing a tulle.

Lady Dot was very plump. She wore very short skirts. Her bobbed head of very fair hair stood out like a nimbus. She was one of those women with a high color and a beaked nose, and eyes of hard, bright blue. Her voice was rather high pitched, decisive and a little brusque, never changing its tone or its timbre, and, like her voice, she was without modulations. She said at once and with confidence exactly what came into her head.

Her son watched the swaying of the hammock, but the subsidence of the cushions, and his mother's very large and flesh colored legs arranging themselves. He thought, "She shouldn't wear those stockings," and while he was thinking it she looked up and discovered him. She was able at all times to find an immediate use for anybody.

"Lance, old lad, I've forgotten the oil of lavender. Get it, will you?"

"Yes, mater."

"And you might see if Mills has put a man to mend the holes in the stop-netting. The Ashleys are coming in this afternoon."

He was half way to the house when he heard her calling.

"Lance! Lance!"

"He hated being called Lance."

"If Conrad's still there tell him I have a bone to pick with him. Send him down here."

John Pybus had gone to the bank.

At half past eleven every Saturday morning he would appear at the door way of the Saracen's Head, wearing a hard felt hat and a black coat, for this was both an official and a personal occasion. He would cross the cobbles of the market square, and, passing between two of the pollarded lime trees, enter the Castle Craven Bank. John Pybus had a banking account. He received a pound a week, his cottage and his food, and his tips amounted to quite a comfortable little sum. His needs were few; tobacco and his books were his only luxuries, though to John Pybus they were necessities.

The tall young cashier treated him with respect.

John Pybus would bring out of his pocket a canvas bag, which when emptied upon the counter would produce a pound note or two, some silver, and a few coppers. He carried the pence in silk purses, all the details neatly filled in, and the cashier knew that there was no need to check Mr. Pybus' figures. The old man had a check book, and it is possible that he wrote three checks a year. He had never been known to draw a check to self. The money remained on the right side of the counter.

"Very money today, Mr. Pybus."

Mr. Pybus would reply with a "Very," or an "I agree with you," and after giving the cashier a nod and a glance from his blue eyes would walk out of the bank and back to the inn, and hang up his felt hat, and change from the cloth coat to the alpaca. He would be away for 10 minutes, never more.

"Good morning, sir. Anything I can do for you?"

John Pybus was hanging up his felt hat when Miss Vallance hailed him from the office.

"John."

"Yes, miss."

"A gentleman called to see you. He's in the lounge."

"What name?"

"He didn't give any name. He said you'd know him."

John Pybus changed into his alpaca coat and walked toward the lounge. He had his suspicions. A gentleman who gave no name when inquiring for the hotel "boots" would probably be a Pybus. And, after all, a name was superfluous, but when John Pybus saw Proby sitting alone in the lounge, with that swive eye of his pointed like a gun over the top of the daily paper, John Pybus was not surprised.

"He said 'Good morning, sir. Anything I can do for you?'"

Proby rose rather hurriedly, leaving the paper on the round table. It is probable that he saw his father in the emphasis of the lounge. He held out a hand.

"After all these years—surely I heard from Conrad. I was—disappointed."

John Pybus made no attempt to take his son's hand, and Proby, with an expectant and embarrassed smile, withdrew it.

"Well, as you please. I wished to make the first move. Are we unrecognizable? It seems a pity."

Old Pybus watched his son's face.

"Lunching here?"

"No, at the White Hart. I left my car there."

"You'd get a better lunch here."

"You think so?"

"But you wouldn't enjoy it. Conrad didn't. I'm just going to have my dinner."

Proby had the air of a man being heckled at a political meeting. He continued to smile. He looked hot. He stood, bending slightly, with his hands on his hips.

"Do you know how many years?"

"About 10," said old Pybus promptly. "My memory and my digestion are as good as ever. As I was saying, I was just going to have my dinner."

Proby made some sort of polite noise.

"Usually I have it with the rest of the staff, but if you have anything to say—"

"Believe me, I have!"

"Very well. I'll take my dinner to the cottage. You can come and see me eat it."
